LUTHER-LOCKE BANQUET

All Future Events of This Character Will Be Measured By the One of Last Tuesday Night

The Luther-Locke banquet at the Harvey House here on last Tuesday night was probably the most elaborate, and certainly the most delectable of any known to the history of Dodge City, and the guests of the evening are happy in memory of it, and in memory of the facts that Mr. Bryan also ran, and Mr. Luther also bet. The occasion was the outgrowth of a little ante-election bantering between Mr. Luther and Mr. Locke, which culminated in a wager of a banquet to follow election. Mr. Luther lost and smilingly sent in an order to Manager Jacobs to prepare the feast and to spare no pains nor expense. And Manager Jacobs acquitted himself so well that his reputation is made for all time, and all banquets which may follow here, and all other Harvey House managers who may follow, and who may go, will be judged and measured by the high standard set then. When the guests entered the banquet room the Dodge City orchestra was discoursing sweet strains of music from a palm grove at the east side of the apartment. The table decorations were a triumph of the green houses of California, and the fast express service which is at the call of the Harvey System, and the excellent taste of Manager Jacobs. The menu was up to the occasion, complete and in season, and Mr. Luther had imported for the occasion a supply of champagne, of a time-tested brand with which they sometimes christen battle ships which are not named after the Sunflower state. After a thorough and painstaking consideration of the menu, Mr. Locke introduced Lieutenant-Governor Fitzgerald as toast master. Mr. Fitzgerald gracefully assumed the duties thus thrust upon him, and in a few preliminary remarks let the guests into a rather startling bit of history, heretofore unwritten, regarding the Papacy of 1816, particularly affecting a certain illustrious monk of the Order of St. Augustine whom we revere in this country, and to whom we feel doubly indebted to since Mr. Fitzgerald's disclosure. The first speaker was called to respond to "The Mayor of Cimarron", and this pleasant task fell to Congressman Madison who in his happy way paid tribute to the mayor of Cimarron, Mr. Frank Luther, the host of the occasion. Judge Milton responded to "The Mirage of Democracy", which considering the fact that it was the agency responsible for the banquet, was a very appropriate subject, and it was delightfully handled by Judge Milton.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a toast master who takes a delight in grilling his subjects. He fashioned an impromptu program which was elastic and which reached to the farthest man in the room. It didn't do to any good to slip down low in the chair. He found them all and tortured them with relish before bringing them to their feet. He even pounced upon three unsuspecting Short Grass newspaper men who were not even armed with a lead pencil and brought them to a quick charge against the bayonet.

Mr. Luther established a reputation as a host that will always remain with him and the evening will ever be remembered by the guests as a very delightful one. Those present were the Messrs. and Mesdames C. M. Beeson, O. H. Simpson, W. J. Fitzgerald, Fred Gardner, E. H. Madison, T. A. Scates, L. J. Pettigrew, H. F. Millikan, B. F. Milton, P. H. Sughrue, T. J. Schall, W. E. Teare, H. A. Burnett, F. W. Tyler, W. Watson, and Mr. W. N. Locke and Mrs. G. L. Finley, of Dodge City, and Mr. Frank Luther, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Peterson, D. Francisco, Harry Brice, Wm. Evans, Mr. Frank Hopper, and wife and sister, and Miss Lela Luther, of Cimarron.

DODGE SAW "THE DEVIL"

Play That Has Been Largely Attended In the East, Has Nothing to Recommend It.

"Go to the Devil," to night, at the opera house, was the startling invitation thrown out in Dodge City on last Saturday, and a good many went.

This play, which is claimed to have had a great run in the east, has little, if any thing to recommend it. There is no purpose to it, no moral, and even no attraction. Why it should have a continued run, even in the east is hard to understand.

The character of the "Devil" comes upon the scene to help along a love affair between a young wife, and a young artist friend. The "sensation" introduced is in the second scene, when upon insinuations of the "Devil" the young woman of the play is supposed to be on the stage (or rather in her rooms among her guests) covered solely by an opera cloak, which the young artist makes a bluff of tearing out to be a mistake, but the "sensation", is effected. The "Devil" finally forces the woman to write her young man a letter, telling him that she loves him and will fly to the ends of the earth with him. She immediately repents, and rushes to the young man's rooms, to prevent him getting the letter. The "Devil" is there, and pretends to tear up the letter unread. Then the woman, demands her letter, tells her lover what was in it, falls upon his neck and howls that she loves him, the "Devil" points at them, and says to the audience: "And there you are."

The people who presented the play here were fairly clever stage folks, especially "Ralph Hardaway," the "Devil", and it was a very good production of a piece that hasn't the first redeeming feature.

SOUTHWEST TEACHERS

Association Began Its Annual Session Here Today. Large Number of Teachers Arriving

The Southwest Teachers' Association begins its annual session here today. The association takes in the teachers of a good number of counties, a territory which is soon to be recognized as the best part of the state. From an educational standpoint, as well as others, this part of the state is fast coming to the front. No part of the state has ever been more interested in educational matters than this territory, and the only drawback in the past has been the sparse population, and lack of money to work with. Now a change has taken place. There is more money in the country, and more people. The salary paid to teachers is higher, and the institutions of learning are as suming a high standard. The teachers are doing the best work that can be accomplished by individual effort, and are adding to this all the benefits which may come through organization. The towns are employing the best superintendents, principals and teachers that can be secured. The district schools are selecting their teachers with care. The county superintendents are expected to do their work thoroughly.

The real work of the association will begin tomorrow. The teachers are getting in today, and those who arrive in time will attend the football game at the park this afternoon, the basketball game early this evening, and the elocution contest this evening.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 the address of welcome to the teachers will be delivered by Congressman Madison, and the first meeting will be held. The following program has been announced for the two days session.

MANUEL KISSEL DEAD

Well Known Old Settler Passed Away Wednesday Evening at His Home on the Saw Log

Word came to the city yesterday of the death of Manuel Kissel, who died Wednesday evening at his home about fourteen miles northeast of Dodge, on the Saw Log. Mr. Kissel was one of the old settlers of Ford county, having located here perhaps thirty years ago, and he was also one of the old soldier citizens of the county. The funeral, it is understood, is to be held at Spearville tomorrow. Mr. Kissel leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters. The sons are Fred and Manuel, and the daughters, Mrs. Zora Stonehouse, of Spearville, and Misses May and Jessie, who are teachers in this county. The death of Mr. Kissel is learned with deep regret by his many friends over the county.

THIS ISN'T NICE

Garden City's Basket Ball Team Came Here To Win, and Were Not Allowed To Do So.

Two games out of three, for the championship of the Arkansas Valley, was the Basket Ball bill here last week. The contestants were the M. W. A. team from Garden City, and "The Tigers", one of our teams here in the metropolis. The Dodge City team won the first game, on Thursday night, the score being 21 to 12. The second game on Friday night was also won by Dodge City, in a score of 26 to 21. This wouldn't be so bad, after all, as a big town ought to have a better team than a small town; but it leaves that terrible doubt, as to whether or not Garden City could have taken one game out of three. Under the arrangements, if one team won two straight, the series was to close. Let us imagine, that if the third game had been played, it would have been won by Garden City. Lets try to feel that way about it, any way.

In this contest for the Dodge City team, Phillips, and Snyder played Guards; Riney, center; and Hulpieu and Kirkpatrick, forwards. For Garden City, Thresher and Allen forwards; Brown, center; and Studvant and McCammon guards.

WAS A FINE CONCERT

Lycoum Course Attraction Monday Night, One which Pleased the Patrons Very Much.

The star attraction of the Lycoum Course for Dodge City this season, and certainly a fine enough attraction to recommend the whole course to the people of the town, "The Vassar Girls", was witnessed by a large audience at the opera house last Monday evening. This entertainment is the result of years of training and study. The Vassar "Girls", they are all girls, or have been, have given years of study to the instruments which they use in their entertainment. Read instruments have the preference in their programs, but the girls play brass instruments almost as well. Besides being highly cultured musicians, they are unusually versatile, changing repeatedly to different combinations of instruments. One member of the company, appeared as a violin soloist, at other times on the program with oboe, saxophone and cornet, playing each equally well. The entire program was high class, and the concert was even beyond the anticipation of the audience, which had expected a fine entertainment. If the remaining numbers of the Lycoum Course are up to this standard, the managers will have a reputation made which will make it easy to secure audiences for the course for the next season.

Christian Science Services.

The Christian Scientists will hold services on each Sunday at 11:00 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Fred Peterson, on Third avenue, one block west and two north of the Carnegie library. Subject for next Sunday, "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, or Mesmerism and Hypnotism."
